THIS REPORT

This evaluation report summarises an evaluation of the Neighbour Day Campaign (NDC) 2020 conducted by researchers at the Australian National University in collaboration with Relationships Australia.

This evaluation summary report seeks to provide an overview of the original report that explored the success of short, medium and long-term outcomes including:

Short-term outcomes including increasing the awareness of Relationships Australia as the home of Neighbour Day and understanding Neighbour Day to be a catalyst to individual, family and community wellbeing; and increasing support of Neighbour Day from individuals and organisations.

Medium-term outcomes include achieving behavioural change and long-term sustainability through increased contact between neighbours and community and increased capacity to host events.

Long-term outcomes including building social capital and social inclusion in neighbourhoods. Given that many aspects of daily life have been impacted by COVID-19, such as the ability to attend social gatherings, the key goal of this external evaluation was to understand whether taking action was protective of wellbeing and enhanced perceptions of the neighbourhood.

Relationships Australia is the home of Neighbour Day.

The NDC increases community wellbeing.

The NDC increases contact between neighbours.

The NDC gives people more capacity to host events.

The NDC increases social capital for individuals and social inclusion in neighbourhoods.

Introduction

BACKGROUND

WHAT IS NEIGHBOUR DAY?

Neighbour Day is a year-round grass roots community development campaign that aims to increase individual and community social connections, foster healthy relationships, reduce loneliness and promote social inclusion. The culmination of the Neighbour Day Campaign is celebrated on the last Sunday in March every year, with the aim of fostering strong personal connections that last year-round. People are encouraged to connect with their neighbours and the members of their local communities.

HISTORY

Neighbour Day was founded in Melbourne, Australia in March 2003 by Andrew Heslop after the remains of an elderly woman were found inside her suburban home. It was the widespread local and national media interest and coverage following the discovery of Mrs Elsie Brown that prompted Mr Heslop to suggest a 'National Check on Your Neighbour Day' in a letter to the editor of The Melbourne Age in 2003. Mr Heslop managed Neighbour Day with his own and in-kind resources until he handed over responsibility for Neighbour Day to Relationships Australia.

WHAT IS RELATIONSHIPS AUSTRALIA?

Since 2013, Relationships Australia has been the home of Neighbour Day. As an Australian, community-based, not-for-profit organisation with no religious affiliations, Relationships Australia provides services for all members of the community. Neighbour Day is practical demonstration of relationships Australia's organisational values in action. Neighbour Day provides Relationships Australia with the ongoing opportunity to highlight the importance of healthy relationships for all aspects of life and community.

NEIGHBOUR DAY CAMPAIGN

The Neighbour Day campaign aims to bring together like-minded people, resources, and organisations to grow stronger, well-connected communities. Relationship Australia utilises Neighbour Day as a community development tool to positively influence individual and community wellbeing. It operates similar to a backbone support organisation within a collective impact style framework. The Campaign relies on three key elements. These are:

- a stakeholder management framework;
- tools and materials to support Neighbour Day events and platforms; and
- a communication campaign

Key Findings

EVALUATION SUMMARY REPORT

Between time-point 1 and time-point 2 (early March- April 2020) respondents reported:

- 1 A decreased sense of wellbeing
- 2 An increased sense of loneliness
- 3 An increased sense of neighbourhood satisfaction

At time-point 2 (April) during lockdown restrictions, respondents reported:

1 Greater neighbourhood identification was associated with better mental wellbeing. This occurred in part due to greater perceived access to neighbours' support and reduced loneliness.

2 Being involved in multiple social groups was positively associated with mental wellbeing. This occurred in part due to greater perceived access to support from family & friends and reduced loneliness.

Methodology

EVALUATION SUMMARY REPORT

A two time-point quantitative study of Neighbour Day participants was conducted. Surveys were administered before Neighbour Day to 200+ respondents and post Neighbour Day to 200+ respondents, with 97 respondents providing complete data at both time-points. It should be noted that a third survey will be conducted 6 months after the post-survey to evaluate how these findings have endured.

*based on number of unique downloads and the average number of people that attended each event as reported in by respondents in the post survey in 2019.

Neighbour Day 2020 Outcomes

LONG-TERM OUTCOMES

Neighbourhood identification was associated with feeling supported by neighbours. This was associated with lower loneliness and higher wellbeing. This means that stronger neighbourhood identification led to greater levels of perceived support from neighbours.

These results are consistent with other nationwide data and highlight the negative impact of COVID-19 lockdown and travel restrictions on population wellbeing.

When people perceived greater levels of neighbourly support, they were less likely to report loneliness and more likely to report high levels of mental wellbeing.

Conclusion

RECOMMENDATIONS

Continue to promote creative ways to connect with neighbours until the end of the pandemic. Continual promotion of creative and safe ways to connect with and support others will have benefits for both community and individual wellbeing.

Continue to promote the importance of social connection with neighbours throughout the year. Despite the personal burdens and sacrifices of unprecedented lockdown measures, there was evidence from respondents of their solidarity with their local community. Ongoing Neighbour Day Campaign promotion throughout the year would be ideal particularly during these uncertain times to support sustained community connection.

Increase awareness of the importance of connecting with multiple groups. Increase awareness of the importance of group-based connection for mental wellbeing. Positive sources of group connection include, but are not limited to, neighbourhood groups.

This report summarises the evaluation of the NDC 2020 completed the by the Australian National University. A final survey will be conducted 6 months after the post-survey (during October 2020) to evaluate how these findings have endured over time.
